

CHICKEN in the KITCHEN™

Game design and artwork by Tyler and Rebecca Stalbaum.
2024.

We hope you will enjoy playing our game with your family and friends!

kickstarter.com/profile/sourdoughgames

@SourdoughChicken

ChickenInTheKitchenTheGame.com

@SourdoughChicken

SourdoughGamesLLC@gmail.com

@SourdoughGames

Chicken in the Kitchen Printable (Gray Scale with Watermark)

Materials Included

- one sheet game board with prototype artwork
- rulebook
- egg tokens
- player tokens

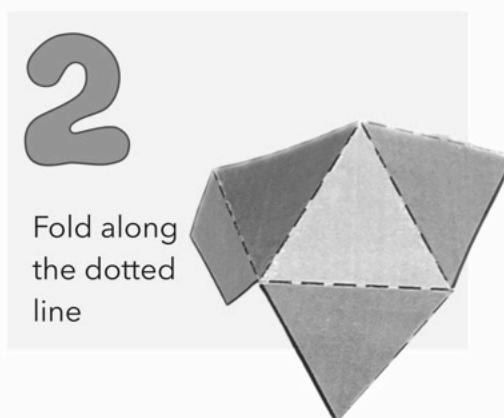

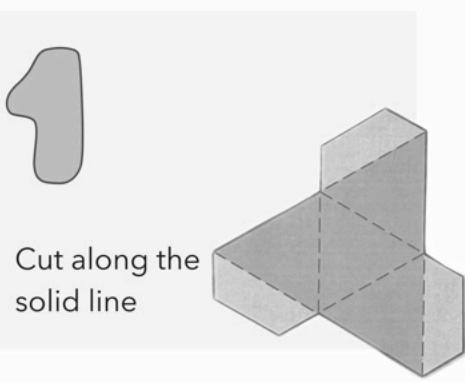

Materials Needed

- your own 48-card playing deck to replace chicken/non-chicken cards.
Red cards are chicken cards. Black cards are non-chicken cards.

The professionally printed version includes chicken and non-chicken cards with custom artwork

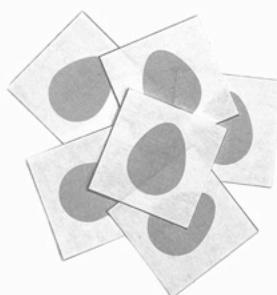

- your own die
The professionally printed version includes a die

Assembly Instructions - Player Tokens

Assembly Instructions - Egg Tokens

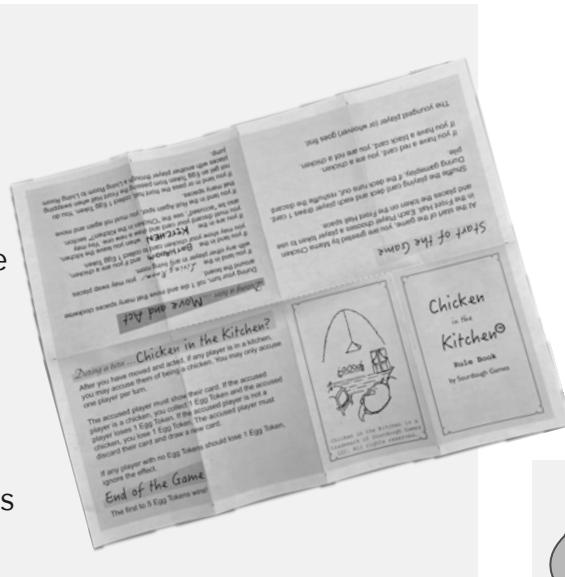

Cut along the solid line.

Assembly Instructions - Folding and Cutting the Rulebook

1

Identify the tick marks along the border of the page. Add creases to the rulebook using the tick marks as a guide.

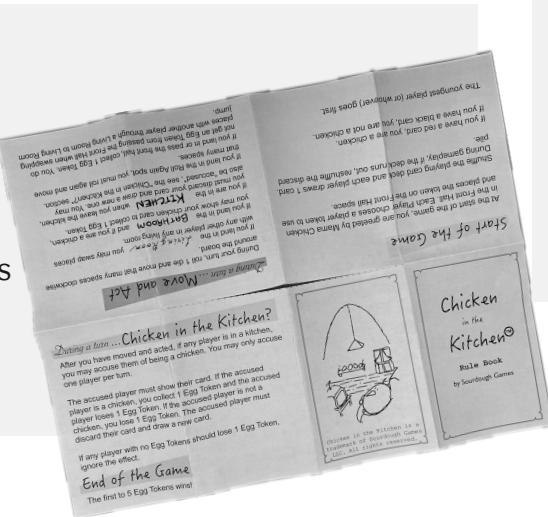

2

Cut along the dotted line

3

Cut the excess border off

4

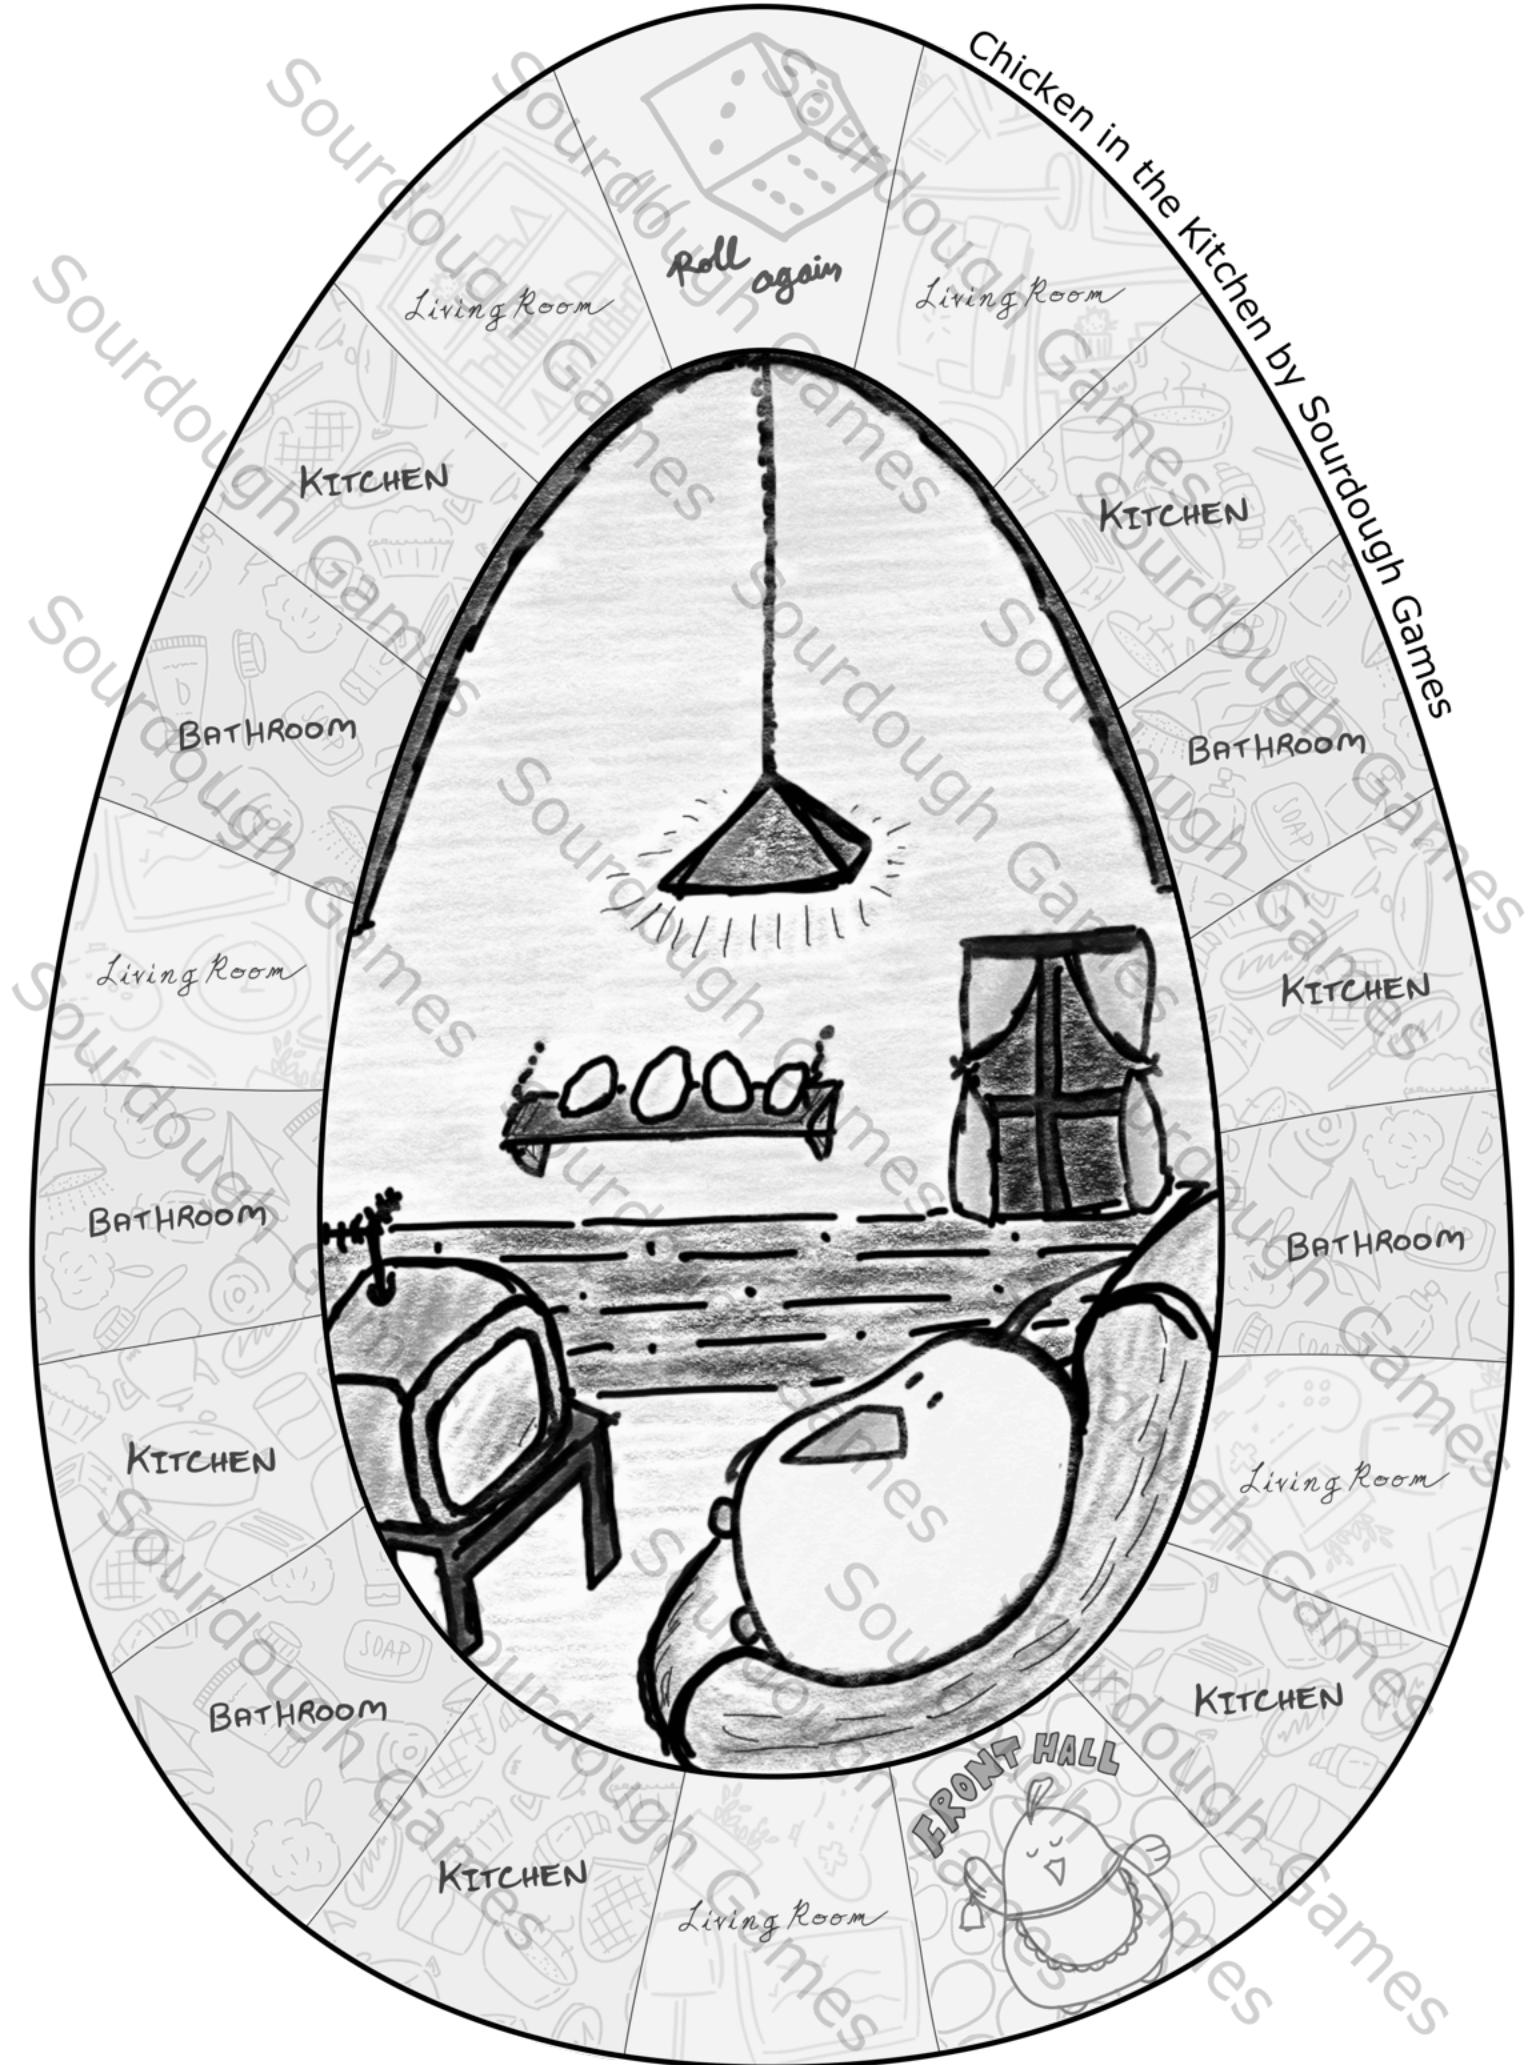

Squish the page into a + shape

5

Fold the rulebook such that the front cover and the back cover shows

If you land in or pass the front hall, collect 1 Egg Token. You do not get an Egg Token from passing the Front Hall when swapping places with another player through a Living Room to Living Room jump.

If you land in the Roll Again spot, you must roll again and move that many spaces.

If you land in the Roll Again spot, see the "Chicken in the Kitchen?" section.

You must discard your card and draw a new one. You may also be "accused", see the "Chicken in the Kitchen?" section.

If you are in the KITCHEN when you leave the kitchen, you may show your chicken card to collect 1 Egg Token.

If you land in the BATHROOM and if you are a chicken, you may swap places with any other player in any living room.

If you land in the Living Room, you may swap places around the board.

During your turn, roll 1 die and move that many spaces clockwise around the board.

During a turn... Move and Act

During a turn... Chicken in the Kitchen?

After you have moved and acted, if any player is in a kitchen, you may accuse them of being a chicken. You may only accuse one player per turn.

The accused player must show their card. If the accused player is a chicken, you collect 1 Egg Token and the accused player loses 1 Egg Token. If the accused player is not a chicken, you lose 1 Egg Token. The accused player must discard their card and draw a new card.

If any player with no Egg Tokens should lose 1 Egg Token, ignore the effect.

End of the Game

The first to 5 Egg Tokens wins!

The youngest player (or whoever) goes first.

If you have a black card, you are not a chicken.

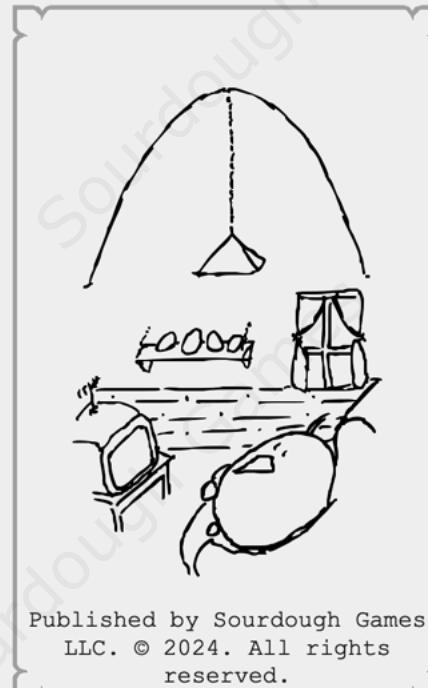

If you have a red card, you are a chicken.

pile.

Shuffle the playing card deck and each player draws 1 card. During gameplay, if the deck runs out, reshuffle the discarded pile.

At the start of the game, you are greeted by Mama Chicken in the Front Hall. Each Player chooses a player token to use and places the token on the Front Hall space.

Start of the Game

Published by Sourdough Games
LLC. © 2024. All rights reserved.

Chicken in the Kitchen™

Rule Book

by Sourdough Games

Egg Tokens

Player Tokens

